

Reads are interventions the memory system performs on itself: the frontier is identified by replay, with no assumption on the write process.

